Col. Fletcher Webster.

A dispatch to Gov. Andrew yesterday announced the death of Col. Fletcher Webster of the 12th Massachusetts Regiment. He was mortally wounded Points House of Industry, No. 155 Worth street. at the battle of Bull Run on Friday last, and has mince died. He was born at Portsmouth, New-Hampshire during the war of 1812, and was the oldest son of Daniel Webster, the great statesman and expounder of the Constitution. Col. Webster was Assistant Secretary of State during the Administration of President Harrison, serving in the State Department under his illustrious father. When Mr. Caleb Cushing received his appointment as ington. Minister to China, Fletcher Webster accompanied him as Secretary of Legation. Under the Adminis tration of Pierce and Buchanan he held a positior in the Boston Custom-House. In 1861, when the call was made for troops, he was among the first to recruit a regiment for the war. When he passed through this city about a year ago, he was attended | Sin: The necessity which now exists of having public ovation. A Call for Aid.

Sargeon-General Hammond, whose foresight and sagneity are only surpassed by his patriotic and humane regard for the present and prospective welfare of the soldiers in our army, has issued a call to the women of America, soliciting their aid to relieve the sufferings of the sick and wounded and distressed We have not less than 10,000 invalids from the army in our hospitals in this city and neighbor bood, and now a telegram from Washington calls ar immediate accommedations for 2,000 men who were wounded in the late battle at Bull Run. Not withstanding the ungallant repulses the ladies have met with in a few instances in this city, we hope and believe they will promptly and cheerfully respond to Our soldiers (with exceptional cases) are men who have been accustomed to good living and kind treatment at home. When they were ill. they had their mothers, wives, and sisters to care for them. Their relationship to the war has not changed their nature so that they no longer need the tender nursing of woman when they are sick and wounded. Weman is the natural nurse of those who suffer from wounds and bruises and sickness, and the idea of banishing her from the bedside of the wounded or Sever-stricken patriot, as though by volunteering to fight the battles of his country he had forfeited all claims to humanity, is repulsive and abhorrent. The ladies who have aided the sick and wounded soldiers in our hospitals belong to our most respectable fami-Nes: they are discreet and intelligent, and have made great sacrifices of time and money to reheve the wants of the wives and children of our soldiers, and they are not discouraged by the misrepresentation of their motives. They have distributed thousands of garments that were needed before the Government could furnish them to the soldier, they have prepared tans of lint and bandages, they have supplied im-

A meeting of the National War Committee aportice, and the same were closed on Sanday, and tables were placed on the sidewalks to receive contributions of the necessary articles. In a few hours eight cart-loads of hospital stores were donated and $15,000 in cash. These stores have already been forwarded to Washington. So much for woman's work. Who will say now that the sick and wounded solider does not need her assistance? In this city similar movements have been finaugurated.

AN APPEAL.

WONAN'S CANTRAL RELIEF Association, 1 No. 10 Cooper Union, Sept. 1, 1862.

In consequence of the appeal from the Surgeon General of the United States Army for bint and bandages, and through the Sanitary Commission at Washington for all supplies except articles of bedding, we would respectfully urge upon all friends and co-workers in the good cause to assist us in filling up the call. We can furnish linen for lint to any persons in the city.

WORK FOR PATRIOTIC WOMEN.

To the Editor of The N. Y. Tribune.

Sir: Allow me to suggest to the women of New-

Such a brigade would naturally be composed of a moment's notice. The regiment has remained on our most efficient business men, or retired citizens, in duty eight days over its time, and would have rethis portion of our State, who could be implicitly relied upon at all times for most efficient war service in day. any emergency; and who would show to our country and to the world a zealous determination to aid the younger members of our community in the noble work of crushing out forever this most inhuman Rebellien, now raging in some of the Slave States, against our Union and Constitutional Government.

I take the liberty to request the use of your valuable journal to give this suggestion publicity, in the hope that if it meets with favor from the public, efficient steps will be immediately taken in cooperation with the Covernor of our State, to form such a corns of veterans for the war.

It must not be forgotten that when this war first broke out, a most efficient corps of nearly a regiment of brave men, over 45 years of age, was soon or ganized at Palace Gorden as the "Home Guard" of New-York—all that we then lacked for the most efficient war service were firearms, which we could not possibly obtain from State or nation; but now received with enthusiasm. Recruits are not possibly obtain from State or nation; but now received at the armory of the 69th, over Essex Marstell or the other accordance. not possibly obtain from State or nation; but now specially obtain from State or nation; but now such objection does not exist. We must all be interested in making ceaseless endeavors to crush out this fratricidal Rebellion by uncompromising warfare to the kilt, and that most speedily. The London Globs has republished the corre spondence between the Governors of the Northern States and President Lincoln relative to calistments, to show that the term "unnecessary and injurious civil war," for the use of which Earl Russell has been strongly denounced in America, actually occurs in President Lincoln's letter.

The Globe suggests that the detractors of Earl Russell must have lost sight of President Lincoln's with the management of the war is beginning to find expression."

The Times referring to the conscription and attendant measures says, that the land of self-government and unlimites freedom is now ruled by a force that is creating lervor. It adds that "involuntary servitude is now the lot of the white race."

The London Morning ilerald says:

"It would be the salvation of the Northern States if Europe would immediately forbid the hopeless continuance of the war.

The Herald then urges that, if a decisive disaster should befall Gen. McClellau, Gen. Pope, or Gen. Buckling, that the North may carry on a border warfare and maintain the blockade, but will have nothing to say agains: the Power that profers to the South "recognition, and the right hand of fellowship."

The Daily News says that the symptoms of bitterness and desperation of the South are such that the extraordinary exertions on the part of the North are called for. It adds: "It is sufficiently clear that the war can only be speedily closed by bringing an decree friend."
